In addition to his pursuit of justice for fathers and families, Leving also pursues a passion for painting. His first solo show was at Southern Illinois University in the early 1970s. In his paintings, Leving combines figures and faces with abstract forms, using visceral mark-making and serene compositional economy.

Leving's paintings have been exhibited in many prestigious galleries and shows, including: "Zen: The Spiritual in Art" at the Murphy Hill Gallery; "Floating Spaces" at the William Hill Gallery; the Xanadu Gallery; and the Floating World Gallery.
